Positioning for the auto sector recovery

- This is a transfer of coverage, and we reviewed our model and earnings forecasts. We are convinced that AutoWallis will continue its outstanding growth story, with estimated FY24 revenues of HUF 398 bn, an EBITDA of HUF19.7 bn, and an EPS of HUF 22.53. Based on our 2024 earnings estimates, AutoWallis is trading at an EV/EBITDA and P/E multiples of 5.7x and 4.9x, respectively, that we think is a very pleasing valuation for the company. We set our 12-m TP at HUF 218 per share, implying a 71% upside potential from the current share price. We reiterate our BUY rating.
- Following the impressive growth of the past years, we expect AutoWallis to publish an upgraded strategy with new sales and profit guidance in the following months. Having maintained a strong balance sheet and capital structure with more than sufficient cash reserves, the management is keen on maintaining the expansion of the group through acquisitions. However, based on the lack of detail around these expansions, we have not incorporated any acquisition into our valuation. Therefore, any announced acquisition could offer more upside potential if value accretive compared to our TP. After seeing the FY23 results, we are convinced that the diverse product range and the geographical diversity of the company can survive economic downturns, and even get through them with impressive results.

Closing a spectacular year

- AutoWallis posted outstanding FY23 revenues yesterday of HUF 366 bn for FY23 (+35.6% YoY), closing yet another record year. Besides the effect of acquisitions, the company grew organically as well, mainly driven by the sales of SsangYong and Opel in the Distribution BU.
- EBITDA increased by 36.3% YoY to HUF 19.7 bn, resulting in an EBITDA margin of 5.4%, the same as in FY22, while achieving a net income of HUF 9.8 bn (13.4% YoY), resulting in an EPS of HUF 21.32. Despite the more than HUF 80 bn increase in COGS, AutoWallis was able to maintain its gross margin of 16.6%, compared to 16.7% in 2022. Following the strong results of FY22, profitability slightly decreased, resulting in a ROE of 23.6% (vs. 30.2% in 2022).
- The cost of materials and services used significantly increased, mainly due to the increased price and volume in Services, and the increased costs of logistics, communications and insurance related to the increased selling of Opel and SsangYong. The increase in other expenses was due to the impairment regarding an Asian brand's insurance event.
- AutoWallis further strengthened its capital structure, with the consolidated equity adequacy ratio reaching 33% at the end of 2023 from 26.5% in 2022. Net debt/EBITDA ratio (including leases) stood at 2.3x at the end of 2023, vs. 2.6x at the end of 2022. (Since then, AutoWallis received 5.7 bn from Wallis Group in a closed capital increase)
- The 36% increase in personnel expenses was primarily due to the acquisitions carried out in the past two years, increasing the average number of employees to 983 in 2023, as well as the wage increases implemented due to the tight labor market.
- AutoWallis sold 44,909 cars last year, up +43.5% from 2022. Sales revenue of the group's Distribution BU increased to HUF 217 bln (+37% YoY), selling nearly 35 ths vehicles, while its Retail business increased sales to HUF 149 bln (+34% YoY), with the sale of 7,907 new and 2,059 used vehicles. The EBITDA margin of the Distribution BU decreased to 5.6% from 5.8% in 2022, with Retail BU EBITDA margin coming in at 5.1%, increasing from 4.8% in 2022.

- Within the Retail BU, the number of service hours increased by 9.7% YoY to 179,809. In Hungary, Sixt, represented by AutoWallis, increased the number of rental events by 5.4% YoY to 23,733 in 2023, while the number of rental days decreased by -11.2% YoY to 187,864. The average fleet size increased by 354% YoY to 3,979, thanks to the acquisition of Nelson and wigo.
- AutoWallis continued its export expansion, in 2023 nearly 60% of the group's revenues came from export countries, compared to 50% in 2022.

Seasonality and one-offs caused weak Q4'23 results

■ Despite the superb FY23 revenues, AutoWallis posted a somewhat disappointing set of results for Q4'23, achieving a net loss of HUF -0.4 bln, compared to a net profit of HUF 1.0 bn in 2022, all the while EBIT (+33.8% YoY) and an EBITDA (+36.3% YoY) both increased. PBT came in positive, with HUF 20 mn. The weaker results were driven by one-off impairments and the usual unsupportive year-end seasonality; therefore, we do not expect to see a major setback in the future.

Outlook

The European automotive sales growth will most likely slow down in 2024, while prices are expected to drop, following the increasing supply from resolved supply chain issues, but decreasing demand driven by high inflation and higher interest rates. As a result of this, we expect AutoWallis' margins to slightly contract this year from the higher values achieved in 2022 and 2023, however, looking at AutoWallis' historical performance compared to its market, we are convinced, that profitability will be maintained by higher sales volume. Despite the weaker Q4 and some slower growth in H1'24, we expect to see some additional growth in the second half of 2024.
